

Pedagogy of Partnership Midwest Fellowship for Jewish Educators

I feel like all of my teaching philosophy was suddenly given language and tools that I didn't know existed, and that I could take everything and put it into practice to meet my goals.

—Lianne Gross Philipp, PoP teacher at CJDS

About the Pedagogy of Partnership Midwest Fellowship

Are you looking for a way to support your students to develop sharp critical thinking skills as well as deep social-emotional capacities?

Pedagogy of Partnership (PoP) can help.

PoP is a comprehensive Jewish educational model that supports educators to bring Torah to the next generation. Rooted in relationship building, PoP supports students to engage meaningfully with both text and one another, joining these educational aspirations together into a seamless whole. PoP provides core principles, activities, language, and routines for Jewish and general studies teachers to develop learners' habits of wonder, empathy, and responsibility toward others and Torah.

Join the rapidly growing network of PoP educators!

This fellowship offers participating educators a professional development program consisting of summer institutes, coaching during the school year, and access to an extensive suite of PoP teaching materials. This tried-and-true approach supports educators to teach for depth, to build connections among students, their peers, and Torah (and other rich content), and to foster a more caring and creative learning environment.

Schools that participate with a cohort will receive additional training and support.

If interested in this community of practice model, contact us for more information and associated fees.
